Items of Interest and Importance of Past, Present, and Future.

time about the immorality of boycotts, and many of his right; only he may be assured that I'm going to boycott him if he ever quotes court decisions to me again when I want to talk across the table about something more eminently worthy.

Anyhow, whether it may be immoral, or anti-social, or whatever it seems to be, I'm in half favor of this boycott of the women are putting on the Rockville fair. I've been attending it for years, and consider myself a regular sustaining member, entitled to opinions.

Last year the women did a lot of work for the fair, and by common consent got snubbed by the fair committee for their efforts. They have been wanting to do the things that would make it a better show, and if they don't get the chance one of these times there will be no Rockville fair.

That would be a calamity, especially, I think, for Washington. This town, like every other town, loves the chance to see the things that make the country. Washington would turn out in thousands if the fair made itself an honest, simple, clean, well managed epitome of the country life.

Here's an idea without a fee. Let the Rockville fair managers try it.

Set a big glass-cased incubator twenty-one days before the fair starts, so that it will be hatching its two or three hundred chicks when the fair opens. Let the little chicks peck their way out of the shells. Advertise it a little; we'll all help furnish the advertising free. Do you know how many people would go out from town to see that one exhibit? I venture more than could be drawn by all the sure-things speculators that ever conducted a shady game to fleece the unwary.

Another Idea Offered
Free to Fair Managers.

Here's another: it's free, too. When wheat is harvested a month hence, have about fifty acres of it stacked on the fair grounds. Then at fair time put in a fine, big, modern threshing outfit and thresh it. People want to see that.

Let the kiddies play in the straw and get full of dust. They'll like it; so will their mamma and papas from town.

Borrow a herd of dairy cows, put in a modern milk handling plant to cool, pasteurize and care for the milk. Let the people see it all work from currying the cows to milking them, and then up to the narrow-necked milk pails, the water cooler, the pasteurizing and bottling plant, and all the rest, interesting!

The whole town would be there to see it. Don't we need to know why milk costs us 9 cents while the farmer gets half that for his milk?

The women, I am told have a lot of such ideas as these. If they win, it'll be the boycott that made Rockville famous. They have the fair by boycotting it honestly what it pretends to be, and what most county fairs are not.

Mrs. Appoline A. Blair
Will Return to Club.

You have probably heard a dozen different rumors as to the intentions of Mrs. Appoline Alexander Blair—of Rubinstein Club fame, you know. The club has been all broken up over stories that her year's leave of absence was to be extended indefinitely, and she has been so sadly missed that the question of the prospect of facing another winter without her was not pleasant to contemplate. She's coming back to the directorship of the Rubinstein. She says so herself, and she ought to know.

Set All Disquieting
Rumors at Rest.

They feel a little better now, having received her personal assurance that she is not about to commit matrimony—that was one of the rumors, with a British officer named as her accomplice—and that she is not ill. She writes that she has been preparing a paper for the Y. W. C. A. choral class about the habits and customs of rural England, which she has found intensely interesting.

She certainly has been in a position to study them, for she has been spending most of her time at her own beautiful home, Elmridge, at Littleton in Canterbury. You remember, she bought it a few years ago. Well, she has almost turned it into a hospital, and has had the best sort of a winter until she writes that she feels as if she had almost turned into a bandage.

Justice Hughes has just been nominated for President on the Republican ticket. The town is humming with the news. But I suppose the condition here is not different in every other place. Even Europe has an eye trained over Washington way today. The question means as much perhaps over there, as it does here. And that reminds me that such a tonic (and here's the tonic for discussion in anything but a coterminous, much less a letter. Later on we will no doubt talk "possibilities" all of the time. Until then, I am, as ever, fondly yours,

JEAN ELLIOTT.

BAZAR $1,000,000 ALREADY IN SIGHT

Officers, Expecting to Reach Mark Tonight, Plan Extra Week for Fete.

NEW YORK, June 11.—With the $1,000,000 fund which it set out to raise being assured by tonight, officers of the big allied bazaar committee practically decided last evening to continue the bazaar a week beyond the closing date, which is next Wednesday.

Exclusive of the returns of yesterday, when nearly 60,000 patronized the big benefit in the Grand Central Palace, it was announced last evening that $700,000 had been realized. Members of the committee were certain, they said, that the sum tonight would reach the million-dollar mark.

Negotiations were carried on yesterday with the management of the Grand Central Palace for an option to prolong the big benefit another week. The Russian day yesterday was one of the most successful of the fete.

Calve Sings "Marsellaise."
When Mme. Calve made her appearance in the flag-draped balcony reared above the captured German aeroplanes last evening at 10 o'clock the crowd that awaited her packed the entire first floor.

Wearing an Alsatian costume of black velvet and waving an enormous French flag, Mme. Calve provoked a storm of applause as she sang the "Marsellaise," with orchestra accompaniment, led by Carlos Salzedo, and a chorus from the Metropolitan Opera.

The throngs burst into wild applause as Mme. Calve finished singing, and with this thunderous encore she began all over again, and this time the big audience joined with her in repeating the stirring anthem.

From this tumultuous reception the noted opera singer hurried to the floor above where the bazaar headquarters of the Y. W. C. A. blind fund is located. The crowd tumbled after her.

Marquise de Polignac quickly led her into a picture gallery. He then presented her with one of the French helmets in the Government exhibit, which he brought over here expressly for the bazaar.

Mme. Calve passed this among the audience which heard her sing several songs in the Theatre de Verdure and the Pre-Catalan Bois de Boulogne. Hundreds of gold and silver coins and paper bills were tossed into the extended helmet, as Mme. Calve smiled broadly her appreciation.

This was Mme. Calve's farewell, for she will sail this morning for France to pass the summer.

The Russian ambassador, M. Bakmeteff, and Mme. Bakmeteff visited the bazaar yesterday afternoon and again last evening.

Madame Nasimova, the Russian dancer, and later witnessed the Russian dancing of Miss Beatrice Wood and listened to Madame Nasimova recite the Edith Wharton's war poem, "The Tryst."

Cable From Belgium.
A cable was received last evening by the Belgian commission here from the Belgian minister of finance, M. Vandervere, expressing the appreciation of King Albert of Belgium for the interest being taken in his people by the bazaar committee.

Today at noon a parade of more than 100 decorated automobiles left the Grand Central Palace for a tour about town. Well-known society women who are assisting at the bazaar were in the parade, among them, Mrs. Robert Bacon, Mrs. William Astor, Mrs. Charles, Mrs. Benjamin Guinness, and Mrs. Le Roy Edgar.

The parade advertised today's program at the bazaar, which is Belgian day. The slogan of 1,000 volunteer workers will be: "Help me feed 100 destitute women and babies in Belgium."

HOW FRENCH WOMEN
REDUCE THEIR WEIGHT

Women wonder how to retain their graceful, slender forms without rigorous exercise, diet or other punishment. The secret is simply bathing with Clarks Thinning Salts. These famous French Salts have the peculiar effect of dissolving fat. With each bath weight and fleshiness diminish without any special exercise or abstinence from foods or drink. It is the ideal method of reducing weight. Clarks Thinning Salts are sold by all leading druggists and chemists. Send for booklet, Orient Laboratories, North Wales, Pa.—Advt.

RAIN DRIVES CARABAO INDOORS FOR FEAST

Storm Prevents "Wallow" on Club Roof, But Fails to Check Fun.

The storm last night caused a sudden change in the plans of the Military Order of Carabao for their annual "wallow," scheduled for the roof of the Army and Navy Club.

Instead of dining in the open air, as planned, they were forced indoors, but the change in no way dampened the enthusiasm of the diners.

Following the dinner, the annual election of officers was held.

The newly elected officers for the year beginning July 1 are: Paramount carabao, Capt. John H. Gibbons, U. S. A.; patriarch of the herd, Maj. Gen. Arthur Murray, U. S. A.; bell carabao, Col. Charles L. McCawley, U. S. M. C.; lead and wheel carabao, Major Joseph M. Heller, U. S. V.; main guide, Capt. Thomas E. Crago, M. C.; winder of the horn, Capt. Joseph S. McKean, U. S. N.; caretaker, Pay Inspector E. W. Bannaford, U. S. N.; gamboling carabao, Col. Lion Williams, U. S. M. C.; veterinarian, Col. C. F. McCulloch, U. S. A.; main guard, Capt. D. E. Nolan, U. S. A.
